

February 18, 2007

A very wise mentor once remarked that "being an entrepreneur is the most challenging undertaking I would ever experience". Of course, armed with my passion, determination and naivety I powered on to accomplish my goals. Challenges, disappointments and obstacles have tested my tenacity, drained my energy and forced me to reevaluate my strategy.

As I have invested the majority of my blood, sweat and tears to HunterCouture there is no option but to continue; once I locate a suitable studio space. In the past several months it has become apparent to me that there is a strong niche market for custom couture pieces and with the support of many friends & associates I will continue to take orders and conduct business; albeit at a temporary location.

February...the month of LOVE! I have abundance and I send it out to all my family, friends and clients who have shown me unconditional support, faith and advice.

Please allow me to introduce you to Bella; the face of HunterCouture Pets! Coming soon to a Pet Boutique near you....not Bella; the collection!
